When Nerves Twitch

Weak Women

suffer greatly from their nerves. They twitch, pull, ache and throb and keep things all wrought up.

What is needed is a gentle tonic like Cardui, to soothe the nerves into forgetfulness and repose. Of course the reason you need Cardui it that it is a woman's medicine, that acts on womanly troubles, hence helps womanly nerves. Cardui has been so wonderfully successful in relieving or curing other women's ailments, that we are pretty safe in saying it will surely help you.

Experience counts. Read the experience of Mrs. Alta Hanes, of Griffithville, Ark., She says: "Before I took Cardui for my female troubles, I suffered death a thousand times. I used to have nervous spells until sometimes I didn't want to live another. minute. The first bottle helped me, and Anty Drudge-"Why, what's the matter, dear? What are you crying about?"

Miss Prettygirl-"Oh, my beautiful new waist is ruined and it just makes me sick. That clumsy Will Johnson upset a plate of refreshments on it last night at the party, and spoiled all my fun."

Anty Drudge—"And his, too, I'll warrant. But dry your eyes, dear. It was all an accident, no doubt but you feel so badly that you have to blame someone. Now if you had only known of Fels-Naptha you could have passed it off as a joke, enjoyed yourself and spared Will an uncomfortable time."

There's a right way and a wrong way to do everything.

And there is a new way and an old way to do almost everything.

The new way to wash clothes is the Fels-Naptha way-in cool or lukewarm water, no boiling, either in winter or summer, and little rubbing.

And the Fels-Naptha is the right way as well-saves time, saves the back, saves fuel, and the wash comes out cleaner, sweeter, whiter.

It is up to you to choose between the new and the old, the right and the wrong way of doing your washing.

THE MAGIC OF BEN STARK. EFORE the party came in sight the sound of their voices reached the cabin, and Burrell rose nervously and sauntered to the door. Uncertain how this affair might terminate, he chose to get first ook at his enemies, if they should prove to be such, realizing the advanage that goes to a man who stands uarely on both feet. Then he heard

"Well, I'll be d-d! Somebody's ere ahead of us." "We've been beaten!" growled Stark angrily, pushing past him and coming round the corner, an ugly look in his "Good afternoon," Burrell nedded pleasantly.

Lee answered him unintelligibly.

Stark said nothing, but Runnion's exclamation was plain. "It's that cursed blue belly!" "When did you get here?" said Stark after a pause. "A few hours ago." "How did you come?" asked Lee.

"Black Bear creek," said the soldier curtly, at which Runnion broke into profaulty. "Better hush," Burrell admonis "There's a lady inside." And a that instant Necla showed her laugh ing face under his arm, while the trader uttered her name in amaze

"Lunch is ready," she said. "We've been expecting you for quite awhile." "Ba gar! Dat's funny ting for sure," said Poleon. "Who tol' you bout dis strike, ch?"

"Mother, I made her," the girl an-"Take off your packs and come in," Burreil invited, but Stark strode for

"Hold on a minute. This don't look good to me. You say your mother tole you. I suppose you're Old Man Gale's other daughter, eh?"

Necia nodded. "What time of day was it when you learned about this?" "Cut that out!" roughly interjected "Do you think I double crossed

The other turned upon him. "It looks that way, and I intend to find out. You said yesterday you hadn't told anybody."

"I didn't think about the woman," said the trader, a trifle disconcerted whereupon Runnion gave vent to an ironical sneer.

"But here's your girl and this man ahead of us. I suppose there's others on the way too. se!" Burrell cut in.

"I call it sleeck work." chuckled the Canadian, slipping out of his straps. "De nex' tam' I go stampedin' I tak' you 'long, Necia."

"Me, too," said Lee. "And now I'm goin' to tear into some of them beans smell a-bflin' in yonder."

and Runnion looked black and had lit meal. Every one was ill at ease. Gale in particular was quiet and ate less than any of them. His eyes sought Stark's face frequently, and once the blazed as he observed the gambles boldly eying Necia. "You are a mighty good looking girl for a 'blood,'" remarked Stark at last.

"Thank you," she replied simply, and the soldier's dislike of the man crystallized into hate on the instant. Ther was a tone back of his words that seemed aimed at the trader, Meade thought, but Gaie showed no sign of it, so the meal was finished in sflence, after which the five belated prospect ors went out to make their locations for the fear of interruption was upon

First they went downstream, and, according to their agreement, the trad-er staked first, followed by Poleon and Stark, thus throwing Runnion's claim more than a mile distant from Lee's discovery. From here they went up the creek to find the girl's other locations, one on each branch, at which Stark sneeringly remarked that she had pre-empted enough ground for a full grown white woman.

Runnion's displeasure was even more

The three of them were alone, and only the sound of Gale's ax came to them, but at the light in the Cana dian's face Runnion hastily discialmed any such thought on his part, and Stark shrugged his dental. There are men quite devoid of the on was of this species. More over, malice was so bitter in his mouth that he must have it out. So when they paused to blaze the next stake he ed himself to Stark loud enough "That Heutenant is more of a man han I thought he was." "How so?" inquired the older man.

"Well, it takes nerve to steal a gir or one night and then face the fa her, but the old man don't seem aind it any more than she does, ness he knows what it means, al

"That's probably how Gale got his quaw," concluded Runnion, with

It seemed a full minute before the renchman gave sign that he had eard; then a strange cry broke from is throat, and he began to tremble a f with cold. He was no longer the inger of songs or the man who was orever a boy. The mocking anger of moment ago was gone. In its place vas a consuming fury that sucked the blood from beneath his tan, leaving im the pallor of ashes, while his nouth twitched and his head rolled lightly from side to side like a palsico ld man's. But evidently Poleon meato violence, for he allowed the passion o run from him freely until it had pent its vigor, then said to Runnie

He went crashing blindly through the underbrush, his head wagging, his shoulders slumped loosely forward like those of a drunken man, his lips fram ng words they could not understand. When he had disappeared Runnica irew a deep breath. "I guess I've framed something for Mr. Burrell this time."

"You go about it queer," said Stark 'I'd rather tackle a gang saw than a smell a bfilin' in yonder."

The others followed, although Stark and Runnion looked black and had lit "Huh! No chance. The soldier was

"Yes, I can stop them," said Stark "I want the ground that girl has staked, and I'm going to get it. It lies next to Lee's, and it's sure to be rich. Ours is so far away it may not be worth the recorder's fees. This creek may be as spotted us a coach dog, so I don't intend to take any chances. "She made her locations legally," said Runnion. "You leave that to me. When will the other boys be here?"

"Tomorrow morning. I told them to follow about four hours behind and not to run i.. on us till we had finished. They'll camp a few miles down the creek and be in early."

"You couldn't get but three, eh?" "That's all I could find who would agree to give up half." "Can we count on them?"

"Huh!" the other grunted. "They worked with me and Soapy Smith on the Skagway trail." "Good-fiv against three, not coun ing the girl and the lieutenant," Stark outlined his plan; then the two re-turned to the cabin to find Lee cook-ng supper. Poleon had finished several pipes and after supper sat in the shadows in the open doorway apparently tired and dejected, though his eyes shone like diamonds and roved from one to the other. Half unconsciously he heard

Stark saying: "This girl was about your size, but

The story did not interest the Canalian. His mind was in too great agitation to care for dead tales. His heart burned within him too fiercely, and he felt too great a desire to put his hands to work. As he watched Burrell and Runnion bend over the table looking at a little can of gold dust that Lee had taken from under his bunk his eyes grew red and bloodshot beneath his hat brim. Which one of the two would it be? he wond From the corner of his eye he saw Gale rise from Lee's bed, where he mutterings, addressing himself to Po-Gale rise from Lee's bed, where he leon and Stark while the trader was had stretched himself to smoke, and take his six shooter from his belt, then remove the knotted bandanna from his neck and begin to clean the gun, his head bowed over it earnestly his face in the shadow. "Nobody finagined that Gaylord would cause trouble." Stark was sayng, "for he didn't seem to be a jealous sort, just stupid and kind of heavy witted. But one night he took advantage of Bennett's absence and sneaked up to the house." The story teller paused, and Necia, who was under the spell of his recital, urged him on:
"Yes, yes. What happened then?
Go on!" But Stark stared gloomly at

Stark made to speak, but the word was never uttered, for there came a dle to leap and flicker and the air in side the cabin to strike the occupants we will sell at retail all like a blow. Instantly there was conbedding plants at wholefusion, and each man sprang to his feet, crying out affrightedly, for the sale prices: had come with utter unexpected

"My God, I've killed bim!" cried Gale. And with one jump he cleared half the room and was beside Stark, while his revolver lay on the floor where he had been sitting. "What is it?" exclaimed Burrell.

But there was no need to ask, for powder smoke was beginning to fill the room, and the trader's face gave answer. It was whiter than that of his daughter, who had crouched fear-fully against the wall, and he shook like a man with ague. But Stark stood unhurt and more composed than any of them. Following the first bound from his chair, he had relapsed into his customary quiet. There had blazed up one momentary flash of suspicion and anger, but it died straightway, for no man could have beheld the trader was pitiable, and the sight of a strong man overcome is not pleasant. When it was seen that no harm had been one the others strove to make light of the accident.

"Get together, all of you! It's nothing to be excited over?" said Stark. "How did it happen?" Runnion final ly asked Gale, who had sunk limply upon the edge of the bunk, but whe old man undertook to answer his words were unintelligible, and he shook his head helplessly. Stark laid his finger on the hole that the bullet had bored in the log close to where he was sitting and laughed. "Never mind, old man; it missed me by six inches. You know there never was a bullet that could kill me. I'm six shooter proof."

"Wha'd I tell you?" triumphantly jaculated Lee to the lieutenant. Doret of all in the cabin had said othing. Seated apart from the others he had seen the affair from a distance as it were, and now stepped to the bed to lay his hand on Gale's shoulder. "Brace up, John. Sacre bleu! Your ace look lak flour. Suppose This Had Been You!

DING in an ambulance is no fun. Suffering in bed for weeks is still less. The doctor's and druggist's bills add mental anxiety to the bodily suffering. And your income is cut off on account of your inability to work!

That's a bad tangle-but the Maryland Casualty Company will unravel it. We can't prevent bodily pain, but we can ease your mind of its worry.

Our Disability policy furnishes an income when you are unable to work, and keeps your mind free from care when you are well. It's a sure dependence.

Tomorrow may bring accident or illness to you. Prepare for it today. Let us talk it over and show you a sample policy.
